

Evacuees need a place to call home.

Many in the Tohoku region lost their worldly possessions in the disaster, including their homes. The national and local governments are making the utmost efforts to develop residential land and public housing for the evacuees.

Prospects for the supply of public and private housing projects and residential land* (Relocation to upland)

In each of the prefectures of Iwate, Miyagi, and Fukushima, approximately 27,000 public houses and private residential land properties are scheduled to be developed by March 31, 2016. Each of the municipalities in these prefectures has disclosed highly-detailed development schedules, enabling even those without housing to begin planning for their new lives.

*As of December 30, 2015

*Fukushima: excluding public housing for returning evacuees from nuclear disaster.
